Summary and conclusions by the Leaders

Key Questions

- How does the circular transformation of industrial value chains in Europe impact employment? Do longer product lifetimes, designing for maintenance and stimulating repair, reuse and recycling have a positive impact on the labour market? Can policy tools mitigate negative impacts?
- What does civil society expect from a circular transition? How can this include stimulating consistent product labelling, actors limiting premature obsolescence, and setting regulatory steps?
- Does the circular economy transition contribute to delivering Agenda 2030? How can the transition be integrated into consideration and paying due attention to social transformation to achieve Sustainable Development Goals 3 (good health and well-being), 4 (quality education), 8 (decent work and economic growth), 10 (reduced inequalities)?

Stakeholder involvement in Agenda 2030 implementation

- The EESC called for the MSP to be upgraded on the basis of successful examples like the European Circular Economy Stakeholder Platform and brought into a formal and inter-institutional consultation framework, as also recommended by the European Parliament
- The Commission is not planning a renewal of the MSP on the SDGs or any other structured involvement of civil society via a dedicated SDG Forum
- The EC SWD notes that the Committee of the Regions and the EESC - and its Sustainable Development Observatory (SDO) - play an important role in strengthening civil society involvement in the monitoring of the SDGs and enhancing evidence-based policymaking.

EESC role in enhancing stakeholder involvement

- The EESC is a bridge between civil society and the EU Institutions. The SDO reputation provides access to the European Parliament and Council Presidencies on SD-related issues.
- The EESC Members have national and regional networks in their countries of appointment – they often participate in debates organised by stakeholders or by governments in the Member States.
- There is an opportunity in connecting EESC Members with national/regional parliaments to expand the debates on the Agenda 2030 implementation.
